

Quadralite Deep Space 165 white parabolic umbrella

Quadralite Deep Space 165 white parabolic umbrella provides milk-white light reflecting surface and unique construction. Thanks to its new, deepened construction light distribution is improved and more narrowed. This is a very useful light modifier that combines qualities of standard umbrellas and large softboxes, and is very helpful during portrait shoots where smooth, strongly dispersed, and soft light is required.

Description:

Internal surface of the Quadralite Space 165 silver parabolic umbrella is covered with a white, matte finish that reflects light and adds a very subtle character. Also, the large area of the umbrella consisting of 16 elements provides extremely soft lighting of the photographed object and slightly marked shadows.

The glass fiber frame comprises as many as 16 rods, ensures evenly distributed tension of the material and helps to maintain the umbrella's shape unchanged. Compared to standard umbrellas, the model is deeper (60 cm) which allows better light control. Glass fiber ensures long life of the product and adds to its high utility. The umbrella's center shaft is made of metal which allows easy mount on all Quadralite studio flashes.

Quadralite Space 165 white parabolic umbrella may be used with reflectors or without them which makes it easy to use the entire reflection surface. The reflector narrows the light spread and slightly increases the contrast. By moving the umbrella's center shaft within the lamp's handle, you can focus or broaden the light beam reflected from the umbrella onto the photo subject.

Quadralite Space 165 white parabolic umbrella is sold with the cover that facilitates the umbrella transportation and provides additional protection against dirt and damages.

It is also possible to separately purchase a white umbrella diffuser.
