Tripod Sirui S-2204-N Carbon Fibre Monopod

Sirui S-2204-N is a tripod made of eight-layer carbon fiber. The small weight and vibration damping are the main characteristics of this product. Thanks to the construction of the tripod, it can be easily and safely transported while on a trip. Just safely place the tripod to a backpack or into bigger pocket in the bag. From that moment, you don't need to worry about anything happening to the tripod – it won't unclip, it won't get lost and it won't get stuck on to anything. Because of the small weight, you will forget that you are carrying it until you need to use it again.

To unfold it, prepare the legs to working position and clip them with the metal clips for better stability. The unfolding process of the Sirui legs is also a pleasure. One movement of your wrist will allow you to unlock majority of the clips or even the whole part of the leg. This sollution is definetly faster than traditional compression connectros.

The tripod is not always needed, sometimes all you need is a monopod. But the price reaches at least 70 euro. However, owning a Sirui S-N series allows you to switch it into a fully functional monopod. All you have to do is unscrew one of the legs (the one that has a cold-insulating and grip-improving cladding), next unscrew the head stand. After twisting those two elements you get an extremely light, rigid and functional monopod. Also, and additional head stand can be purchased separately.

Sirui tripod is equipped with a short central column. After replcaing it with a full-size column, you can photograph so-called frog's perspective when placed the tripod at the widest possible angle. When twisting the rubbered legs, a metal spikes slide out. This solution is very helpful when on slippery and soft surface, the standard legs don't provide with enough stability. The metal spikes, can be much more effectively stably caught in wet meadow, snow or ice. Sirui brand tripods are from highest shelf. More often, these products com out victorious with comparative tests when placed next to the most known and expensive brands. Series S-N is an example of innovation unheard of in the offers of other manufacturers.
